Poetical.

Written for THE COLUMBIAN.

MY WIFE AND I.

BY RAVEN.

We have, for more than two score years,
'Mid cheerful smiles and flowing tears—
Together trod the path of life,
And struggled in this earthly strife.
But time by many a hard caress,
On brow and cheek, with deep impress,
A faded picture only left,
Of youth and beauty both bereft.

Our thoughts are busy with the past,
With now and then strange contrast,
Recalling scenes of brighter view,
When youth was strong, and life was new,
The future then was full of hope,
And duty took a wider scope,
Alas, they've gone and only seem,
As one awaken from a dream.

But, which shall first the journey end;
On which shall death the first attend,
Which drop away first out of life?
And cease this weary toil and strife;
Which pierce the veil that hides from sight
The glories of immortal light?
Where to the senses will be shown,
That, here, by faith is only known.

Which shall be left to linger still,
A few more days to do His will?
Before the golden vessel breaks,
Before its flight, the spirit takes,
Which, look upon the vacant ground,
That is left beside the little mound?
And feel, "how soon I do not care,
That I too, will be lying here."

It matters not, since both e're long,
Shall break the cord that is not strong,
Which, enters first the goodly land,
Which, first shall join the happy band,
The separation will be brief,
This thought is full of sweet relief,
We'll meet each other by and by
To part no more, my Wife and I.

MISS LOLLIPOP'S MOODS.

BY M. E. B.

This is the way that Miss Lollipop rocks,
See-saw, Margery Daw!
Playing with kittens, or dolly, or blocks,
See-saw, Margery Daw!
Swinging and singing with sweet little coos,
See-saw, Margery Daw!
In Choctaw or Sanscrit, or Greek if you choose,
See-saw, Margery Daw!

This is the way that Miss Lollipop goes,
Heigh-ho, hullabulloo!
Flying about on her dear little toes,
Heigh-ho, hullabulloo!
Prancing and dancing all over the floor,
Heigh-ho, hullabulloo!
Who ever saw such a fairy before,
Heigh-ho, Hullabulloo!

This is the way that Miss Lollipop cries,
Weep, wope, winkety-twee!
Digging a very small fist in her eyes,
Weep, wope, winkety-twee!
Sighing and sobbing and all in the shade,
Weep, wope, winkety-twee!
Kiss her and pet her, the poor little maid,
Weep, wope, winkety-twee!

Playing or resting, or merry or sad,
Frink, prank, tantarum ti!
Sweet when she's good, and as sweet when she's bad
Frink, prank, tantarum ti!
Cutting up capers, or cutting up rough,
Frink, prank, tantarum ti!
No one can love her or pet her enough,
Frink, prank, tantarum ti!

WIDOWS AND WILLS.

Simon Maitland lay on his death bed. He had been a hard man during his life-time, and there were dark rumors concerning the manner in which he had acquired his fortune; but he was rich—oh, so rich; people put their hands on their mouths and bowed down in the dust before him, saving their virtuous indignation for criminals of a lower grade.

'Some men's sins go beforehand to judgment.' Simon's were not of that kind, troubling him very little during his lifetime or even in his dying hour, his thoughts being more intent on arranging the fortune of his daughter Helen (who stood by the bedside), for with characteristic tyranny he wished to rule, even in his grave.

'And so you refuse to marry Robert Granville?'

'I have no other choice,' answered Helen; 'not even to gratify a father's dying wish can I be so utterly false to myself as to marry a thoroughly deprived man whose only recommendation is his immense wealth.'

'Don't preach! If you have decided, that's enough. You know me. I am a man of my word. In my will I have made you my heiress unconditionally. Marry Granville and you remain so still. Refuse, and I alter it to suit my pleasure, though I doubt if it suits yours.'

'Father, if your last request has no weight with me in the matter, you can scarcely think I would be influenced by any other consideration.'

'Very well! you like your own way, and disposed to pay a high price for it. I don't blame you, only don't think to dictate to me. I have ruled all my life and will do so still. Go out of the room, and send up the lawyer and the witnesses!'

Argument was useless, so the people were sent up, the will duly drawn, witnessed and signed, the old man died and was buried, and a decorous length of time having ensued, various friends and relatives of Simon were assembled at his house to hear the reading of the will.

Considering the intense interest manifested by these good people in the old gentleman, even from the very begining of his illness, and the emotion displayed at his death, it was astonishing how cool they were towards his daughter, who sat quite alone and disregarded.

It had been whispered that she was disinherited, and each and all were loud in their demonstrations of the impossibility of receiving her, at the same time manifesting small ingenuity of their neighbors, which they were anxious to disclaim for themselves. Much breath was thus expended quite uselessly, as the reading of the testament made them aware, for, after a few trifling bequests, Simon Maitland left the bulk of his property to his daughter, placing it, however, in the hands of Robert Granville, who was to act as her guardian, and who, in the event of her marrying without his written consent, was to receive one-half of it, while the rest of it went to certain charatable institutions.

As Granville had long sought the hand of Helen, and was, despite his immense wealth extremely avaricious, there was small possibility of obtaining his consent to a marriage with any other than himself, so that Helen saw herself condemned to a union with a man she detested, or to celibacy, to which she objected for various reasons, the principal one being six feet in height, and broad shouldered in proportion, and calling itself Paul Britton.

That gentleman being very much enamored, was quite ready and anxious to take Helen then and there, and set the conditions of the will at defiance, but Helen felt an insurmountable reluctance to see Granville in the possession of her father's estates, and counseled delay and patience, hinting the possibility of fulfilling the letter, and yet evading the spirit of her father's testament and promising, when her scheme should be more fully matured, to confide to him, with which the fiery Paul was obliged to content himself.

Granville was a man about forty, pale flabby, and sinister in his expression, with hair like an Indian, and eyes like a serpent—a notorious profligate in his youth—at that time a hypocrite—saintly in conversation, and diabolical in action, making religion a stalking horse, and justifying himself from the scriptures with an ingenuity that enraged Helen beyond endurance.

'I am not surprised,' he said one day in answer to some expression of this feeling toward him, 'that you are thus enraged at me, since the carnal will ever be against me. some guardians might revenge themselves by severity, but I remember that it was written—'Whosoever shall smite thee on the one cheek, turn to him the other;' and so I endure your revilings patiently.'

'Say rather that you think the control of half a million worth a few taunts and sneers!'

"Judge not that you be not judged,' but believe that I seek to wean you from the vanities of a too alluring world, and entice you to a claim consideration and appreciation of—"

'The numerous excellence and perfection of the saintly Mr. Robert Granville, I suppose,' said Helen.

A deep flush overspread his cadaverous countenance, and his voice was horse with rage as he answered, for, spite of his seeming indifference, her taunts galled him to the quick.

'Helen Maitland, take care! You are heaping up wrath against the day of wrath and woe be to you when your reckoning comes, if you are not more civil. You shall find me the devil you profess to think me. There, not another word. What, you talk! Then I will go—I will hear no more of your impertinence.'

And red, rathful and spluttering, he hurried out so brusquely that he almost knocked down a lady who was entering. He stopped and rubbed his eyes; a lady whom he did not know, and at that early hour—very strange—and a pretty one, too, with a foot and ankle that made the old sinner smack his lips. A visitor, as a carriage and several trunks denoted, with a charming face and roguish black eyes looking out from under a coquettish little hat, and a decided toss of the head, that satisfied Grainville she was a dangerous personage.

'Helen is spiteful as the deuce already,' he muttered; 'but if she has another woman to set her up, the whims and caprices of the two will drive me mad.'

If this were really the case his conduct can only be explained on the supposition that he was anxious to become a lunatic as soon as possible; for after the first interview with the dangerous stranger, who proved to be a fascinating little Baltimore widow, his visits were incessant.

Mrs. Morgan by no means shared Helen's aversion to Granville.

She invariably came to his rescue when his dull wits were unable to parry some home thrusts of Helen, and one day he actually heard her reproving that young lady for her irreverant treatment of that excellent man, as she styled him.

'I am surprised, my dear,' said the widow 'for, apart from his moral excellence, he is one of the most fascinating and agreeable of men.'

'Sensible woman,' thought Granville, 'how she appreciates me. Pity that Helen was not more like her. But then the widow is vastly her superior.'

So he became exceeding polite to the widow and Mrs. Morgan grew vastly more confidential.

One of her objects in visiting the city had been to make certain purchases in real estate and with many compliments to his business capacity and a charming helplessness that gratified him, immediately placed the affair in his hands.

Old fox as he was, Granville lost his head. The operation which he was conducting convinced him that she was wealthy and her voluptuous beauty was far more to his liking than the spiritual loveliness of Helen.

Unfortunately for him, he had not yet run the gauntlets of her caprices, for finding his attentions about to be transferred to Mrs. Morgan the provoking girl chose to be jealous.

She followed him from room to room, dogged him in the entries and waylaid him in the conservatory, picture galleries and all other love-making nooks.

He could never obtain a tete-a-tete with Mrs. Morgan, try as he would. At this juncture arrived a cousin of the widow's from Baltimore, an agreeable gentleman named Paul Britton, to whom she confessed herself betrothed.

'I have made a fatal mistake' she said, with a sigh, to Granville; 'but I thought I loved him till—till—'

'Till when?' he inquired, with no little interest.

'Till I came here.'

'I wish I could believe myself the cause,' he said, gallantly, for he had gradually dropped the saint in the interview with the fair Baltimorean.

The lady was silent, but looked down and probably blushed behind the pockethandkerchief she saw fit to apply to her eyes.

'Mrs. Morgan, it is said that silence gives consent. You must have seen in my manner the nature of my feelings toward you. Am I to understand that the emotion is reciprocated?'

'Oh, Mr. Granville,' she said reproachfully, 'think of Helen—'

'Curse Helen!' was the not very pious reply.

'Fie! Mr. Granville, for shame! But it is a pity Helen cares so little about you now she sees you are appreciated by—'

'She is jealous,' broke in Grainville, 'and she is as disagreeable in that mood as she is in all others. It is sheer obstinacy—she detests me.'

'I wish,' said the widow, musingly, 'that she and Paul would become attached. I should not feel so guilty.'

'It shall be so!' he exclaimed in a rapture, 'and we will make them believe themselves the unfaithful parties, and then I can refuse, consent and retain half of her property.'

'To do that,' said a mocking voice, 'you should not speak in quite so loud a key, for neither Miss Maitland nor myself are deaf; and, sitting in the adjoining room, we have unavoidably overheard the whole of your conversation.'

'Paul and Helen! oh! goodness gracious!' and the widow fainted in Granville's arms.

Here was a situation! Mrs. Morgan, rigid and a dead weight on her shoulder. Paul in the door way looking daggers, and Helen in convulsions which must have been hysterical, so much more did they resemble laughing than crying.

'Mr. Britton—Helen—I——' stammered Granville.

'Better attend to the lady, sir,' said Paul coolly: 'I don't care to pick her up myself.'

Here the widow revived.

'Don't care to pick me up, Mr. Britton!' she exclaimed. 'But I am not at your disposal, as you seem to think. Thank Heaven I am not your wife.'

'I do, Madame, and pray that you never will be.'

'Sir,' blustered Granville, 'I will not have this lady insulted. I admire the lady, sir. I adore her—I—'

'Mr. Grainville,' said Paul, 'I have nothing to say to you in the presence of ladies. The arguments I shall employ will be heavier ones.

Granville, who was a coward, turned pale.

'It is written,' he said, with an attempt at the old saintly manner, rendered abortive, however, by a curious quiver in his voice, 'when you are reviled, revile not again—'

'You are not quoting correctly,' interposed Helen. 'It has been so long since you played saint you have nearly forgotten how. Perhaps, however, you have enough theology left to explain to us where it is commanded to court two women at a time.'

'Helen,' said Mrs. Morgan, 'you have never treated Mr. Granville with civility. He has no reason to consider himself bound to you.'

'But I am bound to him by half a million reasons,' answered Helen.

Mr. Granville will release you, I am sure, and Paul—'

'Will have Mr. Granville's blood, escort you back to Baltimore, and ask Miss Maitland to marry me afterward.'

'Why not marry her without the preliminaries you have mentioned?' said Grainville catching eagerly in his abject cowardice at any suggestion by which to save himself.

'It would relieve us all from a very embarrassing position,' urged Mrs. Morgan.

'I should only be too happy,' retured Paul, 'if Miss Maitland could only be persuaded to regard me as worthy of the honor.'

'Miss Maitland cannot marry without her guardian's consent,' answered Helen.

'Oh, if that is all,' exclaimed Granville, 'I will soon remove that obstacle,' and a paper was accordingly drawn and witnessed, giving Helen his full permission to marry Paul Britton whenever and wherever they liked, whereupon that couple chose then and there for time and place, and being indissolubly united in the holy bonds of matrimony received from Mr. Granville the papers by which he controlled Helen's estate.

This accomplished, he began to urge Mrs. Morgan to fulfill her promise. That lady replied 'that there yet remained seven obstacles to her so doing—a husband and six children.'

Thereupon ensued explanations, in the course of which Mr. Granville discovered that he had been egregiously sold—that Mrs. Morgan was a delusion and a snare, being a cousin of Helen's and a co-conspirator with that lady and Paul Britton.

Being well aware, however, that he would receive no sympathy, he wisely remained silent on the subject, only indulging occasionally in private growl when he chanced to meet Helen and her husband, and thought of the too fascinating widow.

LITTLE JOHNNYS ESSAY ON CORNS.

Corns are of two kinds—vegtable and animal. Vegtable corn grows in rows; animal corn grows on toes. There are several kinds of corn; there is the unicorn, capricorn, corn dodgers field corn, and the corn which is the corn you most feel. It is said, I beleive, that gophers like corn; but persons having corns do no like to "go fur" if they can help it. Corns have kernels, and some Colnels have corns. Vegtable corns grow on ears, but animal corns grow on the feet at the end of the body. Another kind of corn is the acorn; these kind grow on oaks, but there is no hoax about the corn. The corn is a corn with an indefinite article indeed. Try it and see. Many a man when he has a corn wishes it was an acorn. Folks that have corns sometimes send for a doctor, and, if the doctor himself is corned he probably won't do so well as if he isn't. The doctor says corns are produced from tight boots and shoes, which is probably the reason why, when a man is tight they say he is corned. If a man farmer manages well, he can get a good deal of corn on an acre, but I know of a farmer who has a corn that makes the biggest acre on his farm. The bigger crop of vegtable corn a man raises the better he likes it; but the bigger crop of animal corn, the better he does not like it. Another kind of corn is the corn dodger. The way it is made is very simple, and is as follows—that is if you want to know: You go along the street and meet a man you know has a corn and a rough character; then you step on the toe that has a corn on it, and see if you don't have an occasion to dodge.

PECULIARITIES OF "YELLOW JACK."

Since the beginning of the eighteenth century seamen have had occasion to notice that sometimes, after a visit to certain ports in West Indies or in Central or South America, a mysterious something has entered their ships,—a something which may in a few days turn the vessell into a floating pest-house, or which may show no signs of its presence for days or weeks, and yet at the end of the voyage may promptly destroy a stranger entering the hold; which might attack all the sailors sleeping on one side of the ship and leave the rest unharmed,—in short an invisible, impalpable entity presenting so many peculiarities in its results that it was the most natural thing in the world to imagine it as being endowed with the attributes of purpose and will, and to speak of it as 'Bronze John' or 'Yellow Jack.'

This tendency to personify yellow fever is strong among all who are familiar with it, and physicians and nurses who have had much experience of its vagaries often speak of them, and of Yellow Jack, in much the same terms as they would speak of a highly disreputable but very interesting acquaintance, a sort of Bohemian among diseases. Its course in a city has been compared to that of a tax collector passing from house to house along a street, often only one side of a street. It is usually stopped by prison or convent walls, sometimes affecting but a few squares, and again developing in a week into one of the most terrible of epidemics. . . .

We have no reliable information as to the origin of yellow fever in time or space. The majority of specific, contagious, or infectious diseases—such as plague, small-pox, measles, scarlatina, cholera, etc.—can be traced with more or less precision to Asia as a starting point; but Yellow Jack has no such history. His presence is first distinctly recognized in the West Indies about 1690, prior to which date there is no satisfactory evidence of the existence in these islands of a pestilence presenting its peculiar symptoms, and harmless to the natives while fatal to the unacclimated. . . .

It is the intertropical Atlantic pestilence, just as cholera is that of India, or the plague that of Egypt and Mesopotamia. It is a specific disease due to specific cause,—a cause which can be picked away in a closet or bureau, and be preserved for months; or which may be carried in ship, or in a trunk of clothing for hundreds of miles retaining its specific powers. Many of its phenomena can at present only be explained on the assumption that this cause is either itself capable of growth and reproduction outside the bodies of the sick, or that it is the product of something which has these qualities. In other words, the cause may be a minute organism, somewhat like the yeast-plant; or it may be the product of such an organism, like alcohol. Either of these may be comprehended under what is known as the germ theory. If the cause is an organism which itself enters the human body and multiplies there, it must exist in more than one form; and in the form in which it usually exists in the human body is not capable of passing directly to another person. It is presumed that it usually enters the body through the respiratory process, and a period of from one to ten days elapse before the characteristics phedamena of the disease appear. This is known as the period of incubation. The cause of the disease has a self-limited period of existence, and this period is comparatively short if it is freely exposed to the external air. In the West India Islands the disease disappears at various ports for many years, and only reappears on a fresh reimportation of the cause.—Dr. John S. Billings on the Yellow Fever in the International Review for January, 1880.

AN ORIENTAL EXECUTION.

THE DECAPITATION OF SIX CHINESE PIRATES.

A correspondent writing from Shanghai says: "I went to see six Chinese pirates beheaded yesterday. The open square where all the executions take place was filled with Chinese of all ages and conditions, and a few Europeans among them. The prisoners were the most forlorn starvelings I ever saw, and betrayed no more fear at their approaching fate than if they were to be spectators of an execution. A huge Tartar officiated as executioner. He was armed with a native sword, and stood on a small platform in the centre of the square. After the criminals, with their hands tied behind, had been taken upon the stage, the executioner took one of the pirates by the arm, brought him to the edge of the platform, hit him a sharp rap with his hand on the head, which caused the poor fellow to bow his head, and then the executioner's sword went up, was poised in the air a full half minute, and with a sweep and glittering blade descended and the poor criminal's head went flying off in one direction and the body in the other. One by one the others met their death in the same way, the Tartar making a very short, business like job of it, merely turning to receive the plaudits of the crowd after each head rolled off, responded by a grin which showed every one of his teeth. But the stolidity of the poor wretches was beyond description. Not a muscle quivered, and even when waiting for the blade of the executioner to fall I could not detect a sign of emotion. The crowd seemed to enjoy the sight immensely, and set up a yell of delight at each cut of the Tartar's sword. I am told that executions are common here. Sickened with the sight I went down one of the roads, and, coming to a prison, went in. Of all places in this world I believe there is not one where so much abject wretchedness can be seen as in a Chinese prison. The criminals serving out sentence get but one meal a week from the authorities. The rest of the time they are fed by their friends, if they have any; by the contributions of visitors, or they starve. I had not much money with me on going in, but came out penniless, the poor creatures so worked on my feelings. Some of the prisioners had lost a hand, others were heavily ironed and all wore the same pinched and starved look. I saw three women in process of execution for murdering a man. They were hanged by the neck in a kind of wooden stocks, so arranged that their feet could just touch the ground, and were left in this condition till dead. Sometimes death ensues very soon, but oftner a day or two will pass before the poor wretch dies, and there is no pressure on the neck. I was glad to get away from this place, too, But the piteous tones of the poor prisoners, begging for 'cumshaw' (a present) ring in my ears."

Common sense. For all cases of coughs, colds, sore throat, etc, use Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

A clergyman's wife had impressed upon her little boy the necessity of ejecting the skins of grapes, and a few days afterward she told him the story of Jonah and the whale. "The whale is a very large monster," said the mother, "and he swollowed Jonah." Did he swollow other men, too?" asked the little boy. "Well, I suppose he did," continued the mother, who was somewhat in doubt, and while she was hesitating about the continuation of the story, the boy interrupted. "And, mamma, did he spit out the skins, too."

When the family attempted to interrupt an attempt of Jones to remove his wife drew a revolver, and threatened to shoot anybody who tried to stop him Jones will be prosecuted in the Courts.

CAMERON'S CONVENTION.

The Republican State Convention was held at Harrisburg on Wednesday of last week, and as predicted, the complete Cameron programme was put through. A number of anti-Grant men went there, but they were not strong enough to overcome the influence of the man who whips in the Republican party in this State to do his bidding. Don Cameron held this convention for the purpose of sending a Grant delegation to Chicago, and notwithstanding there was a strong opposition he carried his point, and a majority of twenty decided that the delegation should vote for Grant as a unit, after the following resolution had been voted down.

Resolved, That, while we pledge ourselves to support the nomination of the republican party, we see no good reason for abandoning the position taken by the party in our own and other states in 1876 of opposition to a third presidential term, and we hereby indorse and reaffirm the resolutions passed by our own state convention held in this city in 1876, upon this question.

This action of the convention does not represent the sentiment of their party throughout the state. It is evident that the popular feeling is for Blaine, and the expressions of opinion from the republican organs that dare open their mouths in opposition to the schemes of the Camerons have clearly shown that the victory of Cameron is by no means a victory for Grant.

The Philadelphia Press says: "This convention, called to make Grant the next Republican candidate for president, has unmade him as such; it was intended to promote his interests, but it has overthrown them; intended to be made the means of stifling the popular will, but it has become the voice of the people; intended to build up the varied schemes which it was called to consolidate, but it has swept them with a besom of destruction, and strewed with wrecks the scene of its meetings. The contest was a fierce one, and the anti-Grant leaders deserve great praise for the courage, skill and the effect with which they waged it. The few timid men among them were quickly sent to the rear. Bolder spirit took their places. Plausible suggestions, which were cunningly made, but which gave away their whole case, were scouted, and a policy entered upon which was intended to assert their parliamentary rights and to force to the severe test of a yea-and-nay vote the threatened indorsement of the "third term." A few men fell by the way, who were tripped by temptations, caught by power or decoyed by blandishment. Powerful influences brought to bear during last Tuesday detached several men from their instructions; but all did not avail to stem or turn the current which carried the convention fiercely forward to its work, and all observant politicians admit that the Grant movement has met its Waterloo."

Even republicans are getting tired of the one man power in this state, and the determination of Cameron to ride over the clearly understood public sentiment, will, if Grant shall be the nominee of the National Convention, be one of the greatest helps to the Democracy in overthrowing the party of fraud.

The nominees on the state ticket are John A. Lemon of Blair county for Auditor General, and Henry Green of Easton for Supreme Judge.

A Blaine rebellion is threatened in Chester County. A large meeting was held at West Chester last Saturday, at which the chairman of the republican county committee presided, and strong speeches were made in favor of repudiating the action of the State convention in adopting the unit rule and instructing for Grant. The following resolution was adopted:

That a committee of five be appointed by the chairman of this meeting to confer with the republicans of other counties in the state upon the propriety of calling a state convention to take such action as will insure a fair and honest vote of the Pennsylvania delegation in the Chicago convention.

Cameron will have to go down there with his little whip and lash these obstinate people into obedience.

Two or three hundred very respectable republicans of Philadelphia published a manifesto in which they implored the delegates to the state convention not to instruct in favor of the nomination of a man "who regards the skilful use of patronage for personal ends as the highest function of a statesman; whose past inability to resist temptation would put his supporters on the defensive; and whose personal ambition leads him to regard the public service as a mere instrumentality for furthering his own ends." And yet we are told in the same manifesto, that the republican party, which twice made this man president, "represents in great part the intelligence, the conscience, and the thrift of the American people."—Faugh!—Phila. Chronicle.

There is likely to be some queer results in the election of Directors for Bloom Poor District. There are two republican candidates in the field. William Kreamer and Jacob Terwilliger are the Democratic candidates. Each voter may distribute his votes among the candidates as he pleases, or may bestow three votes on one candidate, or one and a half to each of two. The candidates highest in vote will be elected.

If the Democratic party ever expect to get power again it must learn a few things from the opposition. Republicans have their leaders, whom they acknowledge as such, and follow them. This leads to perfect organization, and victory is the result. There is too much fighting among our captains, and hence too little confidence in them by the rank and file.

The New Constitution of California abolishes the grand juries, and partially does away with the trials by jury. The man on trial may elect whether his case shall go before a magistrate or jury, and he may agree that a jury shall consist of only ten, or eight, or seven or six persons. This materially reduces the chances of the obstinate juror.

Adolph Borie, ex-Secretary of the navy, died last week on Thursday at his home in Philadelphia, in the 71st year of his age. He had been in ill health for a long time, and his death is attributed to a general breaking down of the system.

Brains are so scarce in the Republican party that they can find but one man fit for the Presidency, and so want to put him in for a third term.

The Duty of the Political Parties.

FROM AN UNSIGNED PAPER IN THE MID WINTER Scribner ON "THE POLITICAL OUTLOOK," WE TAKE THIS PIECE OF PLAIN TALK TO POLITICIANS.

We have got to a stage in the new period of national politics in which one party or the other must take a forward step, and everybody to whom politics is a serious business, and not merely a machine for the redistribution of offices at stated intervals, is interested in the highest degree both in compelling that step and in deciding in which direction it shall be taken. The duty of taking it rests as much on one side as on the other. It is true that the party in power only can take the initiative in all matters of legislation, but the duty of the opposition is something more than criticism. It is bound, whenever, it objects, to say what it would, if it could, do instead of the thing it objects to. It is bound to give the country some better reason for putting it in possession of the government than the bad management of those who actually hold the government. A capacity for judging by no means argues a capacity for doing; and political criticism differs from literary or artistic criticism, in that the critic is bound to describe the kind of work he would produce in place of what he condemns, if the opportunity were afforded him; and not only this, but offer to produce it. It is only by taking this position that any opposition can make itself respectable, or play any useful part in politics, or earn any title to public confidence. It cannot rely simply on the failures and short-comings of the other side. It must have a programme, and submit it frequently for popular approval.

The same thing is true, mutatis mutandis, of the party in power. It cannot rely on the assertion that it is more patriotic, or more moral, or more religious, or more upright in any way than those who seek to supplant it. It is only a very small part of the duty of men in office to set an example of virtue in handling money or dispensing justice. Nor is a party, like a church, a depository of settled doctrines or a cultivator of private morals. It is an organization for the transaction of business. Its function, when in power, is not simply to prevent murder and robbery, and collect the revenue honestly, but to make incessant improvements, both in legislation and administration, so as not only to increase their efficiency, but to adapt them to the ever changing needs and conditions of a progressive society. No party can in our time, therefore, justify its retention of power by the simple plea that something very unpleasant would happen if it went out of office, owing to the moral inferiority of those who would probably take its place. The Turkish government is now the only one in the Western world which gives this as its raison d'etre.

Democrats and Republicans have successfully protected themselves for ten years or more against the demand that they should move on, by the plea that they were either getting rid of "the results of the war," or saving "the results of the war," or in some manner dealing with the results of the war. In whatever shape the plea was produced, it furnished a reason for looking back and not forward, for standing still and not marching onward. Whatever justification it may have been heretofore possible to find for this attitude, it is quite certain that all dealing with the results of the war which is possible through legislation has been exhausted. There remains not a single problem arising out of the war, except the disposition of the legal tender notes of the government, which is not now largely or wholly economical in its character, and is certain to be solved, if soluble, by the ordinary movements of trade and population, and by the ordinary social agencies of a commercial civilization.

Mr. Schurz and the Utes.

When Mr. Schurz cuts off the food supply of a tribe of Indians because a few of their number have been guilty of horrid crimes and have not been caught and handed over to him for punishment, he tortures the innocent as well as the guilty.

We may safely say that the innocent are the greater sufferers. Old men, women and children, who are not even suspected of any part in the Meeker butchery, are denied rations in mid-winter, when the snow is six or eight feet deep in their country, and when, of course, they can get nothing to eat.

Hunger is horrible torture. It is an infernal punishment, justifiable only as a last resort in the most desperate cases. To say to the White river Utes, as Mr. Schurz has said. "You shall have no rations until the murderers are surrendered," was simply saying to a large number of innocent people that they must starve to death because they would not perform an impossible thing.

It has been demonstrated beyond possible doubt that the White river Utes were very badly treated before the recent outbreak. We do not propose to excuse or palliate the murder of Meeker and his associates. The Indians must be taught that grievances, however serious, are not to be redressed by such means. The authors of that crime should be outlawed, a price put on their heads, and no effort should be spared to insure their destruction.

But the Government cannot deal with this tribe as with indians who are unfriendly or hostile without any cause. The Indian Bureau had violated treaty stipulations in the most important particulars. It did not send the supplies of the farm tools due under the treaty. General Fisk testifies that the neglect of the Bureau forced the Utes to travel 175 miles, to Rawlings, for food, and the flour needed at White river stayed at Rawlings until it rotted. As long ago as 1877 the predecessor of Meeker reported to the Indian department that:

"The annuities and supplies furnished these Indians amount to, at a liberal estimate, not over one half that required for their support. None of the annuity goods and but part of their supplies have reached this agency during the year. Goods purchased in August last year have been lying at the railroad depot, 175 miles away, since November last, a period of over nine months. Flour purchased the 1st of June is still at Rawlings; no clothing, blankets, implements or utensils of any kind have been issued at this agency for nearly two years: no flour, except once, fifteen pounds to a family, since last May."

In face of all these facts, in face of the grossest violations of contract on the part of the Government—the Utes having long since fulfilled their part—Mr. Schurz proposes to starve men, women and children unless they will capture and deliver up to certain death twelve of their warriors. So long as this sort of criminal folly is persisted in there can be no peace—Washington Post.

—A Chicago man was told, when he registered at a Council Bluffs hotel, that his wife was already there. He said there must be a mistake, as he had left her at home a few days before, and she had not said anything about a journey; but the clerk insisted that he knew her, and that she was in the house. The fact was that she had eloped.

BENTON, PA., Feb. 8, 1880.

Mr. Editor, here is a Bible riddle pleas give this room in your paper.

He is not Noah, nor Noah's son, nor a Levite nor John the Baptist, nor yet the Wandering Jew, for he was with Noah in the Ark; the scriptures make mention of him, particularly in St. Mark, St. Luke and St. John, so that he is no imposter. He knows no parents, he never lay upon on his mother's breast; his beard is such as no man ever wore; he goes bare-footed and bare-legged, like a grave old friar. He wears no hat in summer or winter, but often appears with a crown upon his head. His coat is neither knit nor spun, nor hair, silk, linen, or woolen, bark, nor sheepskin, yet it abounds with a variety of colors, and fits close to his skin. He is wonderfully temperate; he never drinks anything but cold water, he would rather take his dinner in a farmyard than in a King's palace. He is very watchful, was never caught in bed, but sits in a singular kind of chair, with all his clothes on. He was alive at the crucifixion. Nearly all the world hear him. He once preached a short sermon which convinced a man of his sin and caused him to weep bitterly. He never was married, yet has his favorites whom he loves dearly, for if he has but one morsel of meat he divides it among them. Though he never rides on horseback he is in some respects equiped as horsemen are. He is an advocate of early rising, though he never retires to bed. His prophecies are so true that the moment you hear his voice you may know what is approaching. Now, who is this prophet and what did he foretell?

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS!!

The Model Washer, advertised in this week's paper, is having unprecedented success. It was patented December 9th, 1879; since then over 4,000 have been sold, and as yet not one complaint has been received—'more than satisfied' is the popular verdict. The manufacturers want a general agent for Columbia county, and a local agent in each town.

The Exodus—A Political Dodge.

The Congressional Committee, now investigating the cause of the negro exodus from the South, are arriving at the true inwardness of the black stampede. Among the witnesses was Charles L. Otuy, colored, a native of North Carolina, editor of the Washington Argus, and principal of the Howard University. He testified that he was one of the founders of the National Emigrant Aid society, having himself drawn up its constitution. Its object was to furnish aid to colored people fleeing from oppression such as the destitute crowds then accumulating at St. Louis on their way to Kansas from Mississippi and Louisiana. At one of the first meetings, however a Mr Mendenhall made a speech suggesting that it would be advisable to divert the emigrants from their object point (Kansas) and "send about five thousand into Indiana, as that was a doubtful State in the coming election." Mr. Otuy testified that no one objected to this suggestion at the time except himself. He continued:

I felt that we had been used long enough as tools. I knew the former use of us had not redounded to our advantage. In the South, as one man, we had voted the Republican ticket, and our reward was buckshot from the ku-klux and no protection from the national government. We had placed Mr. Hayes in the White House, and as soon as he took his seat he withdrew from us all the protection we ever had. Hence I was opposed to the longer use of my people by any political party, and as soon as I saw the exodus was to be used politically, I withdrew from the society. There were others in the society who afterwards expressed the same sentiments, but they remained in the organization. The witness argued with his friends in the society that in Kansas the colored emigrants might acquire homesteads; in Indiana and Ohio they could not. To the first named State they had received an invitation, but to the last two named they had not been invited. He next informed the committee that when the exodus from North Carolina first began he addressed letters to the most prominent colored men in the State, asking what caused this uprising. All answered that there was no cause for it; that the more ignorant were deluded by three men named Perry, Williams, and Taylor, who had been North and returned with such glowing news that the people could not resist them. An investigation revealed the fact that these men had been among the most ignorant country people and had told them that the United States government wanted them to go to Indiana, and would give them money to begin with; that they would receive one dollar and a half per day during the winter and from two to two and a half dollars during the spring, summer, and fall. Some who hesitated were told that they would receive new suits of clothes at Washington. These men registered the names of those consenting to go charging them from twenty-five cents to two dollars, according to their ability to pay.

—Captain Eads of jetty system fame, says a ship-railway is more practicable between the Atlantic and Pacific than a canal, and will shortly lay his plans before a Congressional Committee. His idea is that ships can be carried across the isthmus on heavy trucks drawn by locomotives. In this day of engineering skill almost any thing is possible.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS!

The MODEL WASHER

The invention of some method by which the ordinary washing for families, hotels, and public institutions could be successfully performed without the exhausting labor and the ruinous wear and tear of garments involved in the old method of the wash board, and the later process of pounding, squeezing, and dashing the life out of the fabrics, has long been a public desideratum; and impressed with the great necessity that existed for a simple machine that would cleanse soiled linen without the destructive agency of friction, and with the least possible physical exertion, we were led to invent the Model Washer.

It was of vital importance that the method invoked should be of the simplest nature, in order that it might be successfully employed by the most unskilled persons, because otherwise its usefulness must be necessarily limited.

And it was, at the same time, essential to the popularity of such an invention that it should be sold at a price that would place it within the reach of every family in the land.

It affords us sincere gratification to be able to announce that we have succeeded in placing in the market a washing machine so simple in its mechanism that a child may use it, so durable that it cannot wear out, so cheap that the poorest may purchase it, so economical that no family can afford to be without it, and so effective that it is a pleasure to use it.

WHAT IT IS.

The Model Washer is a small portable machine, weighing about six pounds, and can be used in any ordinary family wash boiler. It is composed wholly of galvanized iron, zinc and brass, and hence one of its prominent qualities is durableness; and from the nature of the material entering into its construction, and the simplicity of its mechanism, it is impossible to get it out of order by use. In form it is a circular base, with a diameter of 7 inches and a depth of 1½ inches. In the centre of this base is inserted a horizontal tube, called the discharge pipe, which is 14 inches high, 1½ inches in diameter, and capable, when in full operation, of throwing out 15 gallons of water per minute. Within the base, which is hollow, is located a succession of tortuous passages, so arranged that, by a well-known principle of hydraulics, the hot water in the boiler is rapidly sucked up and continually forced from the bottom to the surface of the boiler through the discharge pipe. The above cut shows how the washer should set in boiler.

In simple language, by the operation of the machine all the water within the boiler is drawn by the irresistible force of suction through the soiled linen, until all the dirt is removed from it, leaving the articles after rinsing, thoroughly cleansed and purified.

The air chamber, an entirely new and original device, invented, patented and exclusively used by us is a special feature of the Model Washer, and an invaluable adjunct to suction washers, by reason of the powerful additional force with which it drives the water through the fabrics of the goods, causing it to search out and eradicate every atom of dirt that lurks within them.

WHAT IT DOES.

It is not as well understood as it should be, that the energetic action of boiling water containing a small per centage of alkali (in the form of common soap) affords the only effective means of removing dirt from cotton and linen goods. It has long been erroneously assumed that nothing short of violent friction produced by hard rubbing in a strong solution of alkali was capable of cleansing cotton cloth. The fact is that the cleansing process consists, not in rubbing the goods, but in forcing the water repeatedly through them after the alkali has loosed the dirt in them. The washer-woman of the past toiled hard to do just what the Model Washer does without effort, viz: force the soapsuds through the articles in the washtub, but with this difference, that she forced the water roughly through them by laborious effort, with the aid of the washboard, while the Model Washer gently infuses the water through and through them, without the least impairing their value.

The Model Washer is especially valuable, if not indeed indispensable, for washing all kinds of fragile fabrics, such as laces, lace curtains, fine lawns, cambrics, &c., which are of too fine a texture to be successfully subjected to the harsh treatment of the washboard. As all housekeepers are aware, it has hitherto been an expensive luxury to cleanse lace curtains, as it could only be done without injury by adepts, whose secret skill enabled them to charge exorbitant prices for their work. Happily, however, the Model Washer has entirely revolutionized this state of things, and made it practicable for every family to perform the most delicate laundry work with the same facility with which they accomplish the ordinary washing of the household.

The Model Washer leaves no longer any excuse for yellow and discolored clothes, which are so often a serious annoyance to families, and which usually proceeds from careless washing, and the use of water of too low a temperature. In washing with the washboard, of course the hands must be plunged in the water, and to render this possible, the water must be reduced to a temperature which the hands can bear; whereas these machines, being composed of metal, retain the heat, and do their work best in boiling suds, and only boiled suds forced through soiled linen will thoroughly cleanse and impart to it the pure whiteness which delights the heart of the good housewife.

Then there is the important labor saving feature of our machine to be considered. The family washing has ever been regarded the most irksome and slavish of domestic duties, and from time immemorial has inspired the whole household with dread. This terror, however, is fast becoming a thing of the past, for by the beneficent aid of our Model Washer a young child or a feeble invalid can do the washing for a large family, in a short time, without fatigue. No rubbing whatever is required. The clothes are placed in the boiler of hot water, and softly pressed down at frequent intervals, to keep them entirely submerged, and subjected to the action of the water that continually passes through them. This is the only exertion required; and remember, the clothes are thoroughly cleansed without being rubbed threadbare on the washboard.

No chemicals whatever are required to be used with these machines. Clean, soft water, or water softened by borax, and a little soap only are necessary.

By the use of Model Washer at least one half of the soap required by the old process of washing is saved. This is an important item where a large quantity of washing is to be done.

WHAT IT COSTS. ONLY $3.

We are anxious to introduce it at once, and so have reduced the price to $3. We prepay all express charges on samples. If you want a business that will pay you well, send for our terms to agents.

Full directions how to use sent with each machine.

P. S.—As to our reliability, we refer you to any Express Co. or Newspaper in this City.
Address all orders to

Denton Manufacturing Co.
1 & 3 Murray Street & 261 Broadway New York.

WHAT AGENTS SAY.

We have received over eight hundred applications for agencies in three months. Some of our agents are having unprecedented success. As yet we have not received a complaint—"more than satisfied," is the answer they give our agents. We want an agent in every county; if there is none in yours, write us at once; don't delay.

Our agent in Hunterdon county, N. J., ordered a sample washer in December, in less than one week he sent us an order for forty washers; our other agents are doing just as well. Our experience has been, with scarce an exception, that wherever we have sent a sample washer we have secured an agent. We can show several hundred unsolicited testimonials.

The following are only a few of the many letters we have received:

One our Agents writes:

"Ship me at once two dozen washers. I enclose money order for amount. It is the best thing I ever sold. I have called on those that I sold to a week ago, and they say they would not part with it for $10.

An Agent Writes:

"I have made a practise of canvassing every Fall and Winter. I never had an article that seemed to give so much satisfaction.

"Please send me, at once 25 Model Washers. The dozen I bought last month I sold to my neighbors, and I am now going to commence canvassing the town."

The following letter, from a Farmer in Pennsylvania, speaks for itself:

"Now that I have got my Summer work all done, I am prepared to give your business a thorough trial. The Washer I ordered for myself gives perfect satisfaction: three of my neighbors have ordered from me already, and I think I can sell at least one hundred in this vicinity.

Another writes:

"I have canvassed for books during the past three years, but I have made more money selling your Washers than I ever made in the book business."

Farmers and others, who have plenty of time on their hands during the winter months, can earn at least $20 per week selling the machines. It is no humbug, but something every body wants, and will buy.

WHAT THE PRESS SAY.

From The Methodist, N. Y.

"Denton Manufacturing Co., Nos. 1 & 3 Murray St., have just introduced a washing machine which they have just named the "Model Washer," and truly it is a model in every sense of the word. We would advise every man of family who reads this to invest in one."

From Baptist Weekly, N. Y.

"The Model Washer, sold by Denton Manufacturing Co., of this City, is the most complete washer ever introduced; it should be in the hands of every housekeeper."

From Agents' Journal, N. Y.

"Every one of the readers of the Journal who are in the Agency business, are particularly requested to read carefully the advertisement of Denton Manufacturing Co., in this issue.

"The article they want agents for is the Model Washer—the most complete and yet the most simple washer we ever saw. No longer is wash-day to be dreaded, for, with the Model Washer, the wife can do her other work at the same time; it requires no 'elbow grease,' no hard labor, in fact it is an article that, after seeing it work, everybody will buy. Agents should write at once to secure the agency for this."

From School Journal, N. Y.

"Denton Manufacturing Co. is a reliable manufacturing concern, and persons who patronize them can depend on what they represent."

CAUTION.—We warn all persons against using or selling any washer like the "Model Washer." We shall prosecute all infringements on our patent to the full extent of the law. Our patent was granted Dec. 9, 1879, and does not infringe on any other patent.

PUBLIC SALES.

A. J. Hess, administrator of Hiram Lauger, deceased, will sell real estate on the premises, in Sugarloaf township, on Saturday, February 28th, 1880.

GET UP A CLUB.

We will send the COLUMBIAN free for one year to any person who will send us four new names with $6,00 in cash. This is an easy way to pay your subscription if you already take the paper, and an easy way to get it if you are not on the list. There is not a spot in Columbia county where four new names cannot be obtained in a few hours' time, if some one will make the effort. Sample copies of the paper will be sent to any address in the county on request. Those of our subscribers who do not care to make the effort, will confer a favor by calling the attention of some active person to this notice, who will undertake it.

The Lenten season began last Wednesday.

Saturday the 14th, is St. Valentine's Day.

Next Tuesday is election day. Put up good men, and see that they are elected.

Township election tickets can be obtained at this office. Orders will be promptly filled.

Henry G. Ort is a candidate for constable at the town election.

Court adjourned on Thursday afternoon last week all the cases having been disposed of. There was argument court on Saturday.

Jacob Miller, who has been suffering with cancer for some years, was buried on Wednesday.

The Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company have purchased the Pennsylvania Iron Works at Danville.

J. C. Carner last week in the Opera House as 'Rip Van Winkle' was capital. He is a favorite here, and every where he goes.

The vendors of soap and wonderful medicines, on the streets, seemed to do a good business. Whether they gave an equivalent for the money they received we cannot say.

The Union Square Comedy Company had a good house on Monday night and the performance was one of the best we have ever had in the Opera House. It is a first class troupe.

Hon. S. P. Wolverton of Sunbury, Joshua Comly, W. J. Baldy and James Scarlet of Danville, A. Ricketts of Wilkesbarre and W. A. Marr of Ashland, were in Court this week.

William Kreamer and Jacob Terwilliger are the only regular democratic candidates for Directors of Bloom Poor District. Vote for no one else.

Mr. Philip Appleman of Rohrsburg will please accept our thanks for a beautiful cluster of fruit from his lemon tree. There are four lemons hanging close together on one branch. His tree is said to be one of the finest in the county.

For the benefit of the Orangeville Union Sabbath School, there will be an oyster supper given on Friday evening, Feb. 20, in the Odd Fellows Store Room. The committee promise an excellent quality of oysters. Come one, come all.

Vashti Pancoast, an old resident of this town died on Sunday morning after an illness of about a week. She was well known and highly respected. The funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon. She left a will of which M. C. Sloan is executor.

Why is it that papers mailed here on Thursday afternoon do not reach Fowlersville until Saturday? Though mailed here regularly, one of our subscribers complains that he has not received a paper for the past three weeks. If this occurs again we shall take pains to ascertain the cause of it.

Accidents will happen in the best regulated printing offices. Last week as we were ready to go to press, a flue in the boiler sprung a leak and put out the fire. This was remedied, and as every thing was ready, another flue gave out, so that we were unable to run off the papers until Friday morning. Arrangements have been made for a new set of flues.

J. B. Scott's bakery is noted for the excellent bread made there. Notwithstanding the advance in the price of flour, no advance has been made in the price of his bread, and the loaves are just as large as ever. None superior in the county. Try it and see.

feb. 13,-2w.

Mr. John Schleyer the proprietor of the Chilton, Wis., Volksbote, a progressive German weekly, gratified us with the following:

With pleasure I add my testimonial to the many already given in favor of St. Jacobs Oil, which I had occasion to test personally. I suffered extreme pains in the back of my neck, which were almost unbearable. Having heard of St. Jacobs Oil I dispatched one of my men to the nearest drug store, procured a bottle, and commenced to apply it at once. The pain subsided, and on the next morning I was all right again.

NOTICE.—The firm of Brockway & Elwell was dissolved October 1st 1879, both as publishers of the COLUMBIAN and in the practice of law. All persons indebted to said firm on notes book account for printing or for legal services are requested to call and settle, as the business of the firm must be closed up soon.

ASBURY ITEMS.

Rev. T. O. Clees has been holding a protracted meeting at Asbury. It has been in progress for some time. There has been a good state of feeling among the members generally. Our minister has faithfully performed his duties in warning the people to flee from the wrath to come.

Mrs. Peter Eveland has been for some time past very much afflicted with hemorrhage of the lungs.

W. W. Sutliff's daughter is lying in a critical condition with congestion of the lungs.

I have been holding some correspondence with H. N. Amerman of Nebraska, Fillmore county, formerly of this place. He moved there two years ago this month with wife and three children; one more has been added to that number since that time. He had nothing more than just enough to take him out; since then he has leased 80 acres of land, has things comfortably fixed around him and doing well. Several of the Asbury boys have gone out and do well. Thats the place for young married folks.

REPORTER.

BUCKHORN, Col. co., Pa., Feb. 10, 1880.
EDITORS COLUMBIAN:

At about eight o'clock Saturday evening, our little village was startled by hearing of the sudden death of Michael Graber, who, but ten minutes before seemed to be in perfect health, he ate a hearty supper and after it was over chatted along with the family as usual, and without a moments warning fell from his chair and died. Heart disease was the cause.

Fred Hartman who, for three weeks has been lying very ill, we are glad to say, is slowly recovering. As Fred is a lively fellow, his presence is very much missed, especially in the church from which he is seldom absent.

Frank B. Harris from Hamburg paid us a flying visit last week.

B. E. C.

EDITORS COLUMBIAN:

From the wail of indignation that comes from a certain editor there seems to be some one hurt about the nomination for Poor Director. When the nomination was quietly made three years ago by the standing committee to the liking of this loyal editor, no fault of one or two men dictating to the masses was found, but now the committee met by the call of their Chairman and had the meeting published in a sound democratic paper, and the committee met at the appointed time and place and nominated Democrats, not bolters, for the office of Poor Directors. Now as this loyal editor has no fault to find with old directors he believes they have done their duty it is pretty certain who he is trying to slander through his smut machine. The people of Scott know who voted for the Poor House and who voted agsin st it, and the list of votes and voters will tell who voted for Sheriff last fall. Talk about fraud and ruie and ruin party! Poor fellow, when democrats want your advice they will call on you. Let justice be done you though the heavens fall.

NO BOLTER.

ORANGEVILLE ITEMS.

The snow has come to cover up the rough roads, and at this writing it looks as though we might have a few days of sleighing.

Dr. Magargell's youngest daughter, little Mary, has been quite sick for a few days but is now recovering.

Mr. Mears from the West Branch formerly of this place, will move here in the Spring. He will live in the house now occupied by Mr Neyhart at the lower end of the town.

Will Conner of Briar Creek has been in town for some days. He is canvassing for "The Life and Travels of General Grant."

A "mite society" under the auspices of the "Ladies Missionary Society," has been started in Orangeville. The first meeting was at the house of Rev. C. K. Canfield. The students of the Academy attended quite generally and passed a pleasant evening with music, charades conversation &c.

Miss Aggie Melick who has been confined to the house for a long time, is out again. Her eyes are much better but not entirely well.

The new term of the Academy opened last week quite favorably. Among the new students are two more from Monroe Co.

PEGGOTTY.

Sherman & Co., Marshall, Mich., want an agent in this county at once, at a salary of $100 per month and expenses paid. For full particulars address as above. Nov. 21-1y.

BERWICK LETTER.

EDS. COLUMBIAN:

During the last few days the ice men have been busy laying up a supply for summer. The crop is considered to be very good.

The skaters have discovered a little strip of smooth ice on the canal and after school hours rush to the scene for an hour's enjoyment. No safer place could be desired by anxious parents than this for their children's skating rink, the canal having only a few inches of water.

Michael Frantz succumbed to his disease, dying last Saturday. He was buried yesterday. Misfortunes clouded his last years.

Mrs. Keeney of Brooklyn made a short visit to her friends the daughter of Alex. Thompson.

The pupils of our schools do not take particular pride in living in a February having five Sundays as one of these days happens to be the 22d of the month. They think Washington's birthday ought to be postponed one day.

Last Friday evening an elocutionary entertainment was held in the hall of the Y. M. C. A., for the benefit of the 'Parsonage Society.' Miss Anna Kunkel of Kingston was employed. Her recitations were very much enjoyed by the large audience, who lavishly praise the elocutionist's powers. Very excellent music furnished by some of the ladies of town. The next literary entainment is to be a lecture by Miss S. B. Anthony, though the announcement has not yet been made.

REPORTER.

Berwick, Pa., Feb. 11, '80.

RATHER HASTY.

On Monday night at the Opera House between the acts of the "Two Orphans," the Janitor of the house, B. H. Vannatta, went to Chief of Police Laycock and informed him that a man down in front was creating a disturbance, and had insulted him. Mr. Laycock went down and told the person to apologize and upon his refusal Vannatta and Laycock laid hands upon him and violently pulling him from his chair, ejected him from the hall. This person was Mr. Godfrey, a young man who has been residing here for some time past as a patient of Dr. Turner, being subject to epilepsy. He is a quiet, peaceable and refined gentleman, and a careful inquiry into the cause of his ejection failed to elicit any facts that in any way justified the proceeding. He had a few words with Vannatta about a seat, but it was so quietly said that those sitting immediately behind did not notice it. The first impression of those in the audience who knew Mr. Godfrey, was that he had a convulsion, but the truth of the matter was soon ascertained, and then the indignation knew no bounds. It was proposed by a number to go out and bring him back and place him in his chair, and the Chief of Police when he saw his mistake, offered to head the procession. This was not done owing to the fact that much excitement is injurious to Mr. Godfrey.

While the Chief of Police supposed he was doing his duty, at the request of the janitor, and says he did not know Godfrey, he was very hasty in doing as he did before satisfying himself that a disturbance was being created. He has probably learned by this time that even a police officer cannot take the law in his own hands, and eject a man from a public hall simply because he will not apologize to the janitor whose business is to sweep the floor and build the fires, and not to look after the seating of the audience. As it is likely that legal steps will be taken, we refrain from saying anything to prejudice the public mind.

THE COOLEY CREAMER.—This method of "deep-setting of milk" is coming into so general use that, at the recent dairy fair in New York, it was not shown as a 'novelty,' but took its place as a common and indispensable adjunct to the dairy. With a Cooley Creamer a dairyman is entirely independent of the weather, and his product is uniform at all times. It is in this, as well as in its convenience, that the Cooley process of setting milk commends itself to all who make butter.

From our foreign exchanges we infer that it has been quite extensively introduced into use in Great Britain.

STILLWATER NEWS

STILLWATER, Pa. Feb. 7th 1880,
MESSRS. EDITORS:

On last Wednesday morning the sun rose in the East as usual—the earth was covered with the "beautiful snow," and the wind came down from the north with a wintry blast, while the writer and his wife were enjoying the comfort and quiet of their home, from which they had recently been absent for over three weeks, laboring in "word and doctrine," with the Church of Christ at Union Chapel in the upper end of Jackson, a report of which will be forth coming. Our peace and quiet however, was of short duration for about 10 o'clock the sleds and sleighs began to come from North and South loaded with men and women young and old, who seemed to have some design upon us. They came from Benton and Stillwater above, and from Pealertown below and being armed with large baskets filled like bomb-shells and sundry suspicious looking packages, they marched immediately into the house and took possession. we surrendering unconditionally, and feeling—well I wont try to describe how we felt. Not satisfied with our surrender, they soon began to discharge the contents of their baskets upon the table, and ere long we were summoned to the dining-room, and oh what a sight! I wish, Mr. Editor you had been here. Well it was such a dinner as the ladies of this valley are renowned for getting up. I need not describe it. Some sixty odd partook to their hearts content, and stomachs' discontent, and after the remains were cleared away, we were again summoned to appear before the same table, where were displayed various articles of dry-goods, groceries, etc., etc., with a contribution of gold, silver and greenbacks, amounting in the aggregate to over sixty dollars, which were presented in a neat and appropriate speech by Mr. Daniel McHenry as a token of good will and respect, to which the writer tried to respond as well as his feelings would permit. All seemed to enjoy it very much and towards night took their departure in good order. Thanks, dear friends, come again, and you come too next time Mr. Editor.

A similar occurrence took place on New Years day, the parties coming from the Jackson Christian Church, a report of which was sent to you but must have failed to reach you. The result of which was to leave the writer some seventy odd dollars better off than when they came. Such testimonials of respect and confidence are valuable.

Everybody seems to be making the best of the little snow, and the jingle of merry bells is heard almost constantly.

Cyrus Robbins is, we learn, teaching singing school at the Stillwater school house. Success friend Cyrus—it is a good work.

Mrs. Stoker, mother in law of J. F. McHenry, is quite ill the result of a recent fall.

Died Feb. 4th 1880, Mrs. Mary Appleman, aged 30 years and 14 days.

The above was the wife of William Appleman Jr. of Benton, and daughter of Mr. Fleckenstein of Orangeville. She was a most excellent christian woman—one of the best of wives, and greatly beloved by all who knew her. She leaves, besides her husband, a little daughter, and many friends and loved-ones to mourn her loss. A large assembly gathered on the 6th to pay the last tribute of respect to her remains. A short sermon was preached in the M. E. Church by the writer, followed with remarks by M. Houtz, pastor of the Reformed Church at Orangeville. Mr. Former pastor of the M E Church was also present. She bore her long and painful illness with great patience and resignation, and departed from this life in the full assurance of a blissful immortality. May God bless and comfort the bereaved ones.

D. W. KINTER.

The Stillwater lodge No 124 K of P holds its meeting Saturday night in M McHenry's new hall.

Columbia Grange No 46 P of H holds its meeting in the same hall their regular meeting is held on the 3rd Saturday of each month.

As an evidence of better times Mr. C B McHenry and Mr Stephen Drescher are preparing to build large barns the coming season. Mr. Metzgar, the blacksmith will build a dwelling house.

The M E Congregation will build a house of worship on the new road leading through Stillwater.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hess were both surprised lately, by numerous friends who took possession of their premises and made themselves quite at home.

RAVEN.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 4.

Grand Jury made their report and were discharged.

GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

The Grand Inquest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania inquiring for the body of the County of Columbia. Respectfully Report: That we have, pursuant to our required duties calmly and deliberately investigated all the Bills of Indictment presented for our consideration and have passed upon them according to their merits.

That we have examined the public buildings and found the entrance into the south-east side of jail in a wet icy condition and recommend spouting on that side of the house; we find the water tank and bath tub in a leaking condition and should be repaired, and that the tank be raised eight inches and that the base be made to slope so as to run the waste water towards the waste pipe, and a bed be put in the Hospital room for the sick, a floor be put into the cellar and that the plastering in the room under the tank be repaired. We also find the well at the jail nearly dry; we recommend the same be repaired and made so as to furnish a good supply of water for the Sheriff.

These recommendations we make for the good of the buildings and convenience of the Sheriff and in the interest of the County. We call attention to these matters and most respectfully submit this our report.

Commonwealth vs. M. Brogan, surety of the peace. Heard by the court, Defendant discharged, defendant and prosecutor each to pay half the costs.

Commonwealth vs. Patrick Lavelle. Malicious mischief. Verdict guilty. Sentenced to pay a fine of $20 and costs of prosecution.

Commonwealth vs. M. Brogan, assault and battery. Case tried, not guilty. Prosecutor and defendant each to pay half the costs.

Commonwealth vs. E. Romick, et. al. Disturbing a religious meeting. Case tried, verdict guilty. On Saturday the prisoners were sentenced by the court as follows:

Immanuel Romick, George Romick, Allen Romick and Charles Linn; you were convicted by the verdict of a jury, of disturbing a religious meeting on the third day of January last at a school house known as Whitmire's school house in Center township, where were assembled for public worship the members of the congregation of the Evangelical Church. In the evening of that day you assembled yourselves (perhaps with others) on the outside of this building in which this religious meeting was held, and there by loud talking and laughing disturbed the proceedings of the meeting, although you were very gently requested either to come into the house or to leave. You refused to do either, but remained upon the outside, making noises continuously during the whole time of the services. That you were aware of the wrong and mischief that you were doing was made apparent by the fact (testified to by one of the witnesses) that when you heard the door open, supposing somebody was coming out, you fled, that you might not be detected, and after the door was closed returned again. Two or three of your number went to the window of the school house, and while the last prayer was being said, made mocking obeisances through the window, nodding your head to the minister officiating, as much as to say, "We have accomplished our purpose." That of itself might not be sufficient to warrant the conclusion that you were disturbing a religious meeting; but the other facts clearly show that you did wilfully disturb the proceedings of that meeting.

It was argued in your behalf that this was no unusual thing in that neighborhood, that others had done so, and that you supposed that you were only carrying out the custom. We wish you and all other persons likeminded to understand that any such custom or practice as that is most pernicious, and is made punishable, by an express positive statute, as a misdemeanor; so that neither you nor any other young men need undertake to justify yourselves in such conduct, on the plea that others have done the same. If such practices have prevailed anywhere in this county, it is time that they were stopped. The lesson taught you by this conviction will, we hope, induce you ever after to refrain from anything of the kind. You ought to remember that the community in which you live has rights; that people have a right to assemble peaceably, to worship according to the dictates of their own conscience; and that it is against all ideas of social duty that young men or other persons should disturb a religious meeting or any other kind of assemblage—political, literary or other. The sentence of the Court as to Immanuel Romick, George Romick and Allen Romick, is that you and each of you pay a fine of $15.00 and the costs of prosecution. You, Charles Linn, were a leader in this mischief: Evidently your voice was most often heard and your expressions were of the most taunting character; you probably led these other boys on. The sentence of the Court is that you, Charles Linn undergo imprisonment in the jail of Columbia County for the term of fifteen days, and that you pay a fine of $15.00 and the costs of prosecution. And as to all, the sentence further is that you and each of you stand committed until this sentence is complied with.

BENSONS CAPCINE | CAPCINE | POROUS PLASTER

A WORD TO THOSE WHO USE POROUS PLASTERS. It is a universal acknowledged fact that BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTERS ARE SUPERIOR TO ALL OTHERS. The great demand for them has caused a number of unscrupulous parties to make and sell worthless imitations under similar sounding names. As the market is flooded with inferior plasters selling at any price it is important for the consumer to know which is the best. It is well known that some of the cheap plasters have been examined and found to contain injurious ingredients which make them dangerous to use, causing paralysis and other diseases. CAUTION—see that the word CAPCINE on each plaster is correctly spelled.

Rupture

DR. J. A. SHERMAN—IS THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY DR. SHERMAN known to the public for the past 30 years or more through his successful method of treating rupture without the annoyance and injury trusses inflict. His system of cure by local external application. No man is safe who has a rupture, no matter how insignificant he may consider it, for every man who has died from it once flattered himself that it was but a trifling ailment; and every man who now suffers from it and the injury of trusses, to such an extent that life has no enjoyments, once regarded it as unworthy special attention. It is not a standstill affliction; it is progressive, even unto death. Reference given to gentlemen in the city, who have been cured. During treatment no hindrance from labor. Patients from abroad can receive treatment and leave for home same day.

HIS BOOK ON RUPTURE

gives the most reliable proofs from distinguished professional gentlemen, clergymen and merchants of his successful practice and popularity therefrom throughout this country and the West Indies. The afflicted should read it and inform themselves of the certainty of being cured. It is illustrated with photographic likenesses of extremely bad cases, before and after cure, and mailed to those who send 10 cents. Save this, and remember the address is

DR. J. A. SHERMAN

251 Broadway, cor. Murray Sts., New York.

CAUTION—The reputation of Dr. J. A. SHERMAN, attained from 30 years successful practice has started around the country Pretenders who assume to be Dr. Sherman famous for the cure of Rupture. Two of these parties an old and young man recently turned up in Boston; they duped several by their Fraudulent Advertisements, when detected suit was brought, but the fellows ran away leaving sorrowful victims, room, board bills and newspapers unpaid. Since then they have been discovered at 941 Broadway, New York, where they recently, by the deception defrauded an aged Clergyman.

LADIES CAN SHOP BY PENNY POSTAL CARD

Out of town people who cannot conveniently travel, may have samples sent them of Dry Goods and all other goods that we sell, if they will write us. No charge, and no need to order if not suited. We make it a business to attend to such letters quickly; and when orders come we send the exact article wanted, and at exactly same price as other customers pay when here buying in person. When goods are not as ordered, we take them back. Having trained and responsible clerks, who are able to use discretion in filling orders, we are enabled to give great satisfaction to the many customers who leave the choice to us. With a reputation of twenty years at retailing, we cannot afford to lose our good name by lack of proper service to absent customers. RECENT IMPROVEMENT IN THE BREEDING OF HEAVY HORSES.

From the earliest times to the present day it has been a great misfortune and loss to mankind that so little attention has been paid to the breeding and rearing of a more powerful race of horses for heavy farm and road work, and the use of the city dray and large expresses and truck wagons. Poets from the sublime Job down to the high-spirited Byron, have been profuse in their descriptions and praises of the horse for war, the chase, and the course; while historians, travellers, and sportsmen have been ever eloquent over them in volumes of prose Strange that the most generally useful of all the different breeds of horses should, with few exceptions, be ignored and passed by in silence, and so much be written and spoken of others which, although requisit for special purposes, and worthy of high admiration, have contributed less to the benefit of humanity. But fortunately a great change in this respect has taken place within the past few years in Europe as well as in America.

A numerous society, composed of noblemen, the landed gentry, and farmers of Scotland, has recently been formed for the purpose of improving the breed of their larger sort of horses. This society takes the name of Clydesdale, and that distinguished nobleman Earl Dunmore has been devoting a considerable part of his time during the last two years to editing a Stud Book of their horses, classed also as Clydesdale. The first volume of this has already been published, and the matter for the second is collecting. England is now zealously following the laudable example set her by Scotland for what has long been known as the Shire and other of her best large breeds of horses. The Prince of Wales, Earl Ellesmere, and and other noblemen are giving no little attention to the getting out of their Stud Book, and the whole landed interest of the United Kingdom is fast waking up to the importance of improvement of this most useful of all their breeds of horses.

Within the past three years 200 to 1000 guineas ($1000 to $5000) has been the common price in Great Britain for select heavy horses for breeding purposes, and even 1500 guineas ($250 to $400) is the ordinary price of those for farm and dray work alone. In France, Belgium, Holland, and a few districts of Northern Germany, prices have also advanced considerably, and greater attention is given than formerly to the improvement of their horses, all of which shows the rapidly increased interest in the subject abroad. Nor has this matter been neglected in America, particularly in the past four years, during which large numbers of powerful heavy animals have been imported into Canada and the United States from Great Britain and France, with a few also from Flanders. The Clydesdale breed have been more generally preferred for Canada, while the Percheron and Norman have taken precedence in our own country.

For the Percheron and Norman in America a Stud Book was published in 1877, by Mr. J. H. Sanders, of Chicago, Illinois. A revised edition followed the next year of 212 large octavo pages, handsomely got up, with numerous fine engravings. The object of this Stud Book is to preserve an accurate record of the males and females imported from France and their full bred decendants, so that the public may not be imposed upon here after by unprincipled dealers palming off their inferior grades for full-breds.—A. B. ALLEN, Harpers Magazine for February.

Father is Getting Well.

My daughters say, "How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters." He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable, and we are so glad that he used your Bitters.—A lady of Rochester, N. Y.

Descending the Humboldt Mine.

Entering a rough wooden building, you see a steam-engine turning an immense drum around which is coiled a wire rope. On a chair sits, with each hand on a leaver, the bright, watchful engineer, his eye fixed on the drum, now nearly covered with the coil. In another minute, click! the machinery has stopped, and out of an opening in front, like Harlequin in a Christmas pantomime, has come a grimy figure, who stands there smiling at you, with a lamp fixed on the front of his cap, and his feet on the rim of a great iron bucket. He steps off, the bucket is emptied of the load, not of rich ore, but of very dirty water, which he has brought up, and there is an air of expectancy among the workmen, and an inquiring smile on the face of Mr. Thornton, the superintendent. Something is clearly expected of you, for it is established that you are not what is called by the miners a 'specimen fiend,' or unmitigated sample-collecting nuisance, and it is assumed that when you came hither to investigate you 'meant business.' You take the hint, and follow Mr. Thornton to a room, where, amid a good deal of joking, you put on some clothes—and such clothes! If you have one spark of personal vanity, 'all hope abandoned, ye who enter here,' for even your kind guide has to turn away to hide a smile when he sees you in overalls which will not meet in front, and are precariously tied with a ragged string, an ancient flannel shirt, the sleeves of which hang in tatters around your wristhands, and a cap which might have come over in the May flower, and has a smoky lamp hooked into its fast decomposing visor. As you approach the mouth of the shaft, the engineer generally remarks that there 'ain't much danger,' and when the bucket has come up and been partially emptied, the by-standers repeatedly advise you to be careful about getting in. As you climb perilously over the side, you think of the Frenchman who, starting in the fox-hunt, cried out: 'Take noteece, mes amiz, zat I leafe everyzing to my vife!' And when you are crouched down so that Mr. Thornton can stand on the rim above, you do not think at all, but know, that you are what Mr. Mantalini called 'a dem'd moist, unpleasant body.' Mr Thornton makes a grim remark about it being as well to have some matches in case the lamps go out, gives the word, and down you go. Understand that there is just about room for the bucket in the shaft, that the latter is slightly inclined, and that you catch and jar and shake in a nerve-trying way; and understand, further, that a person should carefully study his temperament and possible disabilities before he takes a contract to go into a deep shaft.

At a certain depth—it may be 500 or 1000 feet (in some Nevada mines it is 2500)—you stop at side drifts or cross-cuttings in which men are at work, and here you see, walled in by rock, the fissure vein. Some are 'stoping,' or cutting pieces away with the pick, others holding the steel wedges, and others striking them tremendous blows with sledge hammers. They are, by-the-way, in the habit of accompanying these blows with guttural sounds, the hearing of which induced a special correspondent of the gentler sex—ignoring the fact that they receive three dollars per diem, own chronometer watches, and have fine bank accounts, and silver spoons on their tables—to write a soul-moving description of the poor down-trodden miner, imprisoned far from the light of the blessed day, uttering terrible groans as he toiled his life away for the enrichment of the bloated and pampered capitalist. Other men, again, are drilling, loading, and tamping for the 'shots,' which are to tear the rock in pieces; and you will probably remember a pressing engagement to 'meet a man' at some distance from the mine, and induce Mr. Thornton to ring for that moist car, and take you up before they light the match.—A. A. Hayes, Jr., in Harper's Magazine for February.

J. F. Davis, of Portsmouth, Ohio, sold in one year four een thousand boxes of "Sellers' Liver Pills." Try them.

A DEADLY RING.

Here is a true elephant story for you from an American missionary, who once lived among the Dutch Boers of Natal, for seven years. He saw the ivory, and beleives the story.

One afternoon, about four o'clock, three Dutchmen were out hunting and came upon a large herd of elephants. They fired at the leader, and instantly the entire heard fled. The leader rushed on and on, thinking he was on the right track to escape; but the the elephants were in a valley and only ran round and round it, in a circle perhaps three-hundred yards in diameter, and were shot down from four o'clock in the afternoon until eight in the evening, when darkness prevented the Dutchmen from taking aim any longer. But the three men rose at break of day, and found the poor elephants still going round and round. It was several hours before a new leader, breaking out of the beaten track, led off the remainder of of the herd in safety.

The Dutchmen whose names where Botha, and Potgeiter, two being brothers, counted the slain. Ninety elephants lay dead in the valley; and as their valuable tusks of ivory were divided equally among the three Dutchmen, you can beleive that each man's share was considerable.

My Good Woman.

Why are you so out of sorts, never able to tell folks that you are well? Ten to one it is all caused in the first place by habitual constipation, which has no doubt finally caused deranged Kidneys and Liver. The sure cure for Constipation, is the celebrated Kidney-Wort. It is also a specified remedy for all Kidney and Liver diseases. Thousands are cured by it every month. Try it at once.

CATARRH

NEVER-FAILING RELIEF

AFFORDED BY

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

It is a fact that can be substantiated by the most respectable testimonials ever offered in favor of any proprietary medicine, that the RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH does in every case afford instant and permanent relief. No matter of how long standing, or how severe the disease, the first dose gives such evidence of its value in the treatment of Catarrhal affections that confidence is at once felt in its ability to do all that is claimed for it. The testimony of physicians, druggists, and patients is unanimous in this respect, and the accumulating evidence is in point of respectability superior to any ever before obtained in favor of a popular remedy. The proprietors, therefore, may justly feel proud of the position the RADICAL CURE has attained, and believe it worthy of its reputation.

10 YEARS A SUFFERER.

From Hon. Theo. P. Bogert, Bristol, R. I.

MESSRS. WEEKS & POTTER: Gentlemen,—Feeling thoroughly convinced of the efficacy of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH, I am induced to drop you a line to say that although I have been sceptical of all the nostrums advertised as "radical cures," I have never found anything that promises such relief and ultimate cure as that of SANFORD'S. I have been afflicted with this dreadful disease for more than ten years, and not until recently could I be induced to persevere with any until I read the letter of Mr. HENRY WELLS, and can truthfully say that after using five or six bottles I am thoroughly convinced of its curative properties. Hoping that others similarly afflicted like myself will be induced to make the trial, I am, gentlemen, very truly, etc. THEO. P. BOGERT.

BEST IN THE WORLD!

ABSOLUTELY AND CHEMICALLY PURE.

ARM AND HAMMER BRAND. CHURCH & CO'S BI-CARB. SODA

AND

SALERATUS

Which is the same thing.

Impure Saleratus or Bi-Carb Soda (which is the same thing) is of a slightly dirty white color. It may appear white, examined by itself, but a COMPARISON WITH CHURCH & CO'S "ARM AND HAMMER" BRAND will show the difference.

See that your Saleratus and Baking Soda is white and PURE, as should be ALL SIMILAR SUBSTANCES used for food.

A simple but severe test of the comparative value of different brands of Soda or Saleratus is to dissolve a dessert spoonful of each kind with about a pint of water (hot preferred) in clear glasses, stirring until all is thoroughly dissolved The deleterious insoluble matter in the inferior Soda will be shown after settling some twenty minutes or sooner, by the milky appearance of the solution and the quantity of floating flocky matter according to quality.

Be sure and ask for Church & Co.'s Soda and Saleratus and see that their name is on the package and you will get the purest and whitest made. The use of this with sour milk, in preference to Baking Powder, saves twenty times its cost.

See one pound package for valuable information and read carefully.

Dear Sir:—I had been troubled for a long time with a Pain in my Stomach, and found no relief until I began using your Indian Blood Syrup. I find it the best medicine in use, and I can recommend it to all, old and young. It saves many dollars in doctors' bills, and one large bottle did me more good than five dollars worth of other medicine.
Mariam Labarr.

An Astonishing Cure.

Monroe, Wyoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—I had been afflicted with a Cough, Loss of Appetite and Dyspepsia for ten years. I could not properly attend to my business, and hearing of your justly celebrated Indian Blood Syrup, I resolved to try it, which I did, and in a short time was much improved. I now have a good Appetite, and have enjoyed good health ever since I commenced its use.
J. Labarr.

Sick Headache Cured.

Bowman's Creek, Wyoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—I had Sick Headache and by the use of your Indian Blood Syrup I was greatly relieved. I recommend all to try its valuable properties.
J. W. Burnett.

The Remedy did more than she Expected.

Newberry, Lycoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—The Indian Blood Syrup did more than I expected it would and it has cured me of Liver Complaint. I use it as a Medicine and would not be without it.
Mrs. Mary Charman.

Headache and Dizziness.

Williamsport, Lycoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—Your Indian Blood Syrup has cured me of Headache, Dizziness and Loss of Appetite, so that I am now able to work in my factory. My wife derived more benefit from its use than from any other medicine.
Henry Russel.

Would not be Without it.

Williamsport, Lycoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—The Indian Blood Syrup is the best I ever used and I would not be without it, it is good for all complaints.
John Burkhart.

Diseases of the Stomach.

Eaton, Wyoming county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—This is to certify that I had a Weak Stomach and could eat no meat or any hearty food whatever. By a friend's advice I commenced the use of your Indian Blood Syrup, which after a short trial, effectually relieved me and I can now eat anything I choose. Your Syrup gives universal satisfaction.
Elizabeth Hadsall.

All that it is recommended to be.

Opera House, Columbia, Pa.
Dear Sir:—I have used your excellent Indian Blood Syrup and it has proven just as represented. I can recommend it to all.
Wm. Bochow,
Wholesale Merchant, 5th street.

Unanimous Recommendation.

The following add their testimony for the Indian Blood Syrup:
H. E. Greaff, engineer P R R.
J. G. Smith, at Baldwins Steel Works.
Mrs. Snyder, of Columbia.
A. Brener, of Washingtonburgh.
John Kenys, of Safe Harbor.

Would not be Without it.

Benton, Columbia county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—I have used your much excellent INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP and have received much benefit therefrom. I could not get along without it.
Mrs. Barber.

Never Fails to Cure.

East Lemon, Wyoming Co. Pa.
Dear Sir:—I was sick for three years, and under professional treatment most of the time without being benefited. At last I was induced to try your INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP and after a short trial, I found myself in better health than I had been for six years.
Mrs. Theron Ball

Sure Cure for Liver Complaint.

Rohrsburg, Columbia Co. Pa.
Dear Sir:—This is to certify that your INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP has been used by me, for Liver Complaint, which had been troubling me for a long time I derived more benefit from the use of the Syrup than from any other medicine. I heartily recommend it, and advise all sufferers to give it a trial.
L P Smith

Loss of Appetite.

Rohrsburg Columbia county Pa.
Dear Sir:—I have used your excellent INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP for Loss of Appetite and Weakness of the Stomach, with very beneficial results. I believe your medicine to be the greatest blood purifier known, and advise all who may be suffering as I was to give it a speedy trial.
Mrs. E Avery

Pains in Shoulders.

Rohrsburg, Columbia county, Pa.
Dear Sir:—This is to certify that your INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP has greatly relieved me of Pains in the Shoulder and Chest, which I had been afflicted with for years. I recommend it very highly.
Mrs. Mary Welsh.

Kidney Complaint.

Bear Gap, Columbia County, Pa.
Dear Sir:—My Father has been suffering with Kidney Complaint for a long time and had been under doctors' treatment, but the doctors could not effect a cure. I have been subject to a Numbness and Weakness in my Left Arm. We obtained some of your invaluable INDIAN BLOOD SYRUP from your Agent, Wm. H. Potter, and it has cured my father completely, and my arm is much better, it does not trouble me half so much. Your medicine is excellent.
Josiah John.

The Purest and Best Medicine ever made.

A combination of Hops, Buchu, Mandrake and Dandelion, with all the best and most curative properties of all other Bitters, makes the greatest Blood Purifier, Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth.

No disease can possibly long exist where Hop Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm.

To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, Hop Bitters are invaluable without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use the Bitters at once. It may save your life. It has saved hundreds.

$500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help. Do not suffer nor let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is no vile, drugged, drunken nostrum, but the Purest and Best Medicine ever made; the "Invalids Friend and Hope," and no person or family should be without them.

Get some this day.
